Rafli Febrian

Freelance Graphic Designer

Pekanbaru, Riau, Indonesia

Summary

Rafli is an enthusiastic learner and is currently pursuing visual-related fields such as Graphic Design and UI Design. After going through a lot of development as a coder in college, he is now a UX researcher trying to understand user problems and their needs.

As a UX researcher, Rafli is responsible for studying and analyzing user behavior to inform user-friendly and easy-to-use product designs. He uses a variety of research methods, including usability testing, surveys, and interviews, to gather insights and feedback from users.

Currently, Rafli has completed his bachelor degree in Information Systems at the Caltex Riau Polytechnic with his final assignment in the field of UIUX by creating a mobile prototype called BrandQu which focuses on connecting influencers with Small and Medium Enterprise (SME) in doing branding using the design thinking method.
